WORKSHOP BACKGROUND

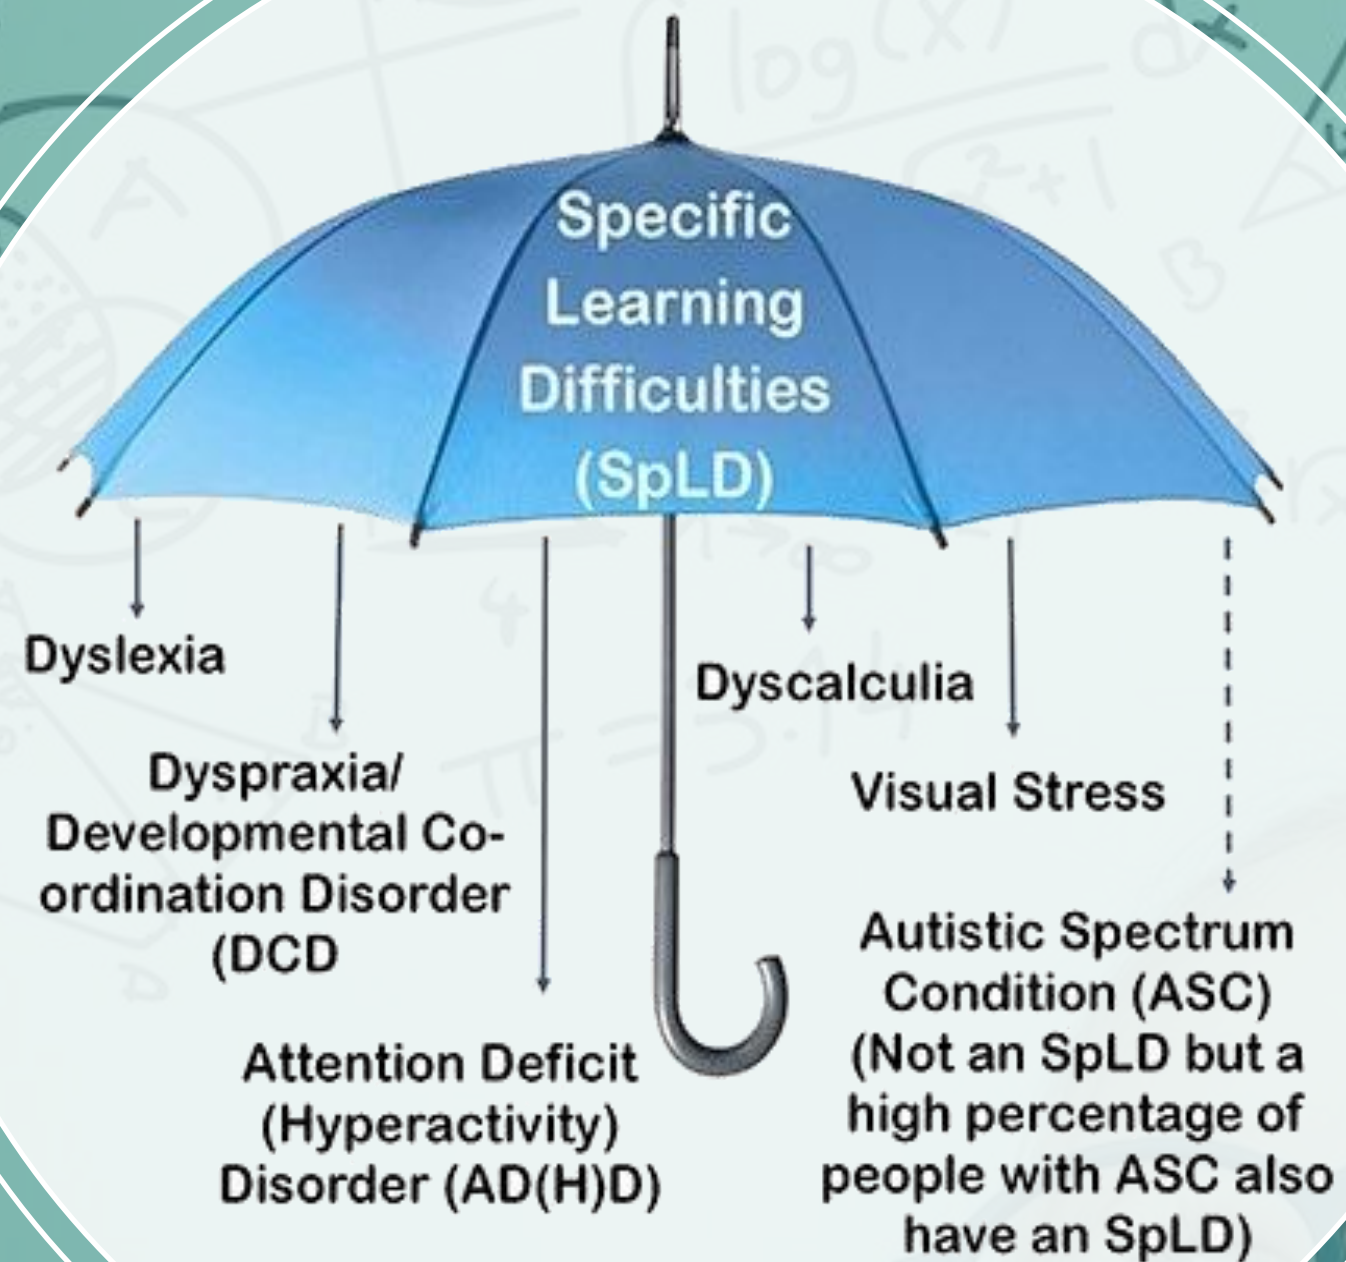

Specific learning disability (SLD) is a common and invisible yet highly impactful disability. It is a disability recognized by few but afflicting many and causing high degree of impact. Since it has an important bearing on academic function, it carries high degree of distress in the Indian society. SLDs are neuro developmental disorders affecting 5%–17% of the children. In our country the prevalence of dyslexia varies between 3% and 10%. It is characterized by difficulties in reading, listening, writing, mathematical, and reasoning skills.

Though many schools today have a counselor to identify and help children with learning disability. However, experts suggest that having a counselor is never a solution, in fact every teacher should be able to identify and help children with SLD.

This workshop aims to achieve this goal by equipping teachers with skills and methods to reach out to every student in a classroom, because EVERY CHILD MATTERS

Topics to be covered:

1. Introduction to “Specific Learning Disabilities” (SLD)
2. Type of Learning Disabilities
3. Indicators of each type
4. Eight areas of learning issues with SLD children
5. Informal assessments
